Jack Gardner is a dynamic Australian fast bowler currently representing Papua New Guinea in international cricket.

Thanks to his heritage, Gardner has been playing for PNG since March 2023, featuring in 6 T20 internationals and 4 additional matches against teams such as Vanuatu, Philippines, Oman, Nepal, Malaysia, and Namibia.

Under the guidance of PNG's coach, former Zimbabwean captain Tatenda Taibu, Gardner has emerged as PNG's lead bowler, with his best performance being 2-27 against Malaysia in March 2024.

This summer, Gardner is competing in New South Wales' South West Slopes for the league leaders, Coolac. He has had a standout start to the Tumut District Cricket Association season, with top performances including 42 runs off 58 balls with the bat and remarkable bowling figures of 9-2 (yes, you read that right!).

Before relocating to country NSW, Gardner played for Sandgate-Redcliffe in the Brisbane Grade Competition. In the 2023/24 season, he featured in the top two grades, with 5 appearances in the highest level. His team included state players like Mitch Swepson, Jake Winter, Ben Cooper, and Blake Macdonald. Last summer, Gardner took 15 wickets across the top two grades at an average of 26.53.

A highly motivated cricketer, Gardner is determined to further his career. He is keen to travel to the UK for more development and comes highly recommended as a promising player.
