Ndhlovu's journey towards success gained momentum when she was nominated for the highly coveted "Player of the Month" award by the ICC in April 2023. This prestigious recognition showcased her remarkable skills and the impact she had on the game during that period.

In the 2022/23 T20 season, Ndhlovu's exceptional performances led her to be crowned as the "Player of the Tournament." Her consistent displays of excellence throughout the competition demonstrated her ability to thrive in high-pressure situations.

Ndhlovu's impact was particularly noteworthy in the finals of the 2022/23 T20 and Fifty 50 tournaments. She was named the "Player of the Match" in the finals between the Eagles and the Rhinos in the T20 competition, as well as in the finals between the Eagles and the Mountaineers in the Fifty 50 format. Her outstanding contributions on these occasions showcased her ability to rise to the occasion and deliver match-winning performances.

The 2021/22 T20 season was also a standout period for Ndhlovu as she was awarded the title of "Player of the Tournament." Her exceptional batting skills and consistent performances throughout the competition earned her this well-deserved recognition. Additionally, she was recognized as the "Batter of the Tournament," further highlighting her dominance with the bat.

Ndhlovu's impact extended beyond tournaments as she consistently performed at a high level in individual matches. She was named the "Player of the Match" in the encounter between the Mountaineers and the Alliance Health Eagles, showcasing her ability to make a significant impact in crucial games.

Her contributions were also instrumental in the Eagles' match against the Tuskers in the 2021/22 T20 season, where she was crowned as the "Player of the Match" for her outstanding performance.

Ndhlovu's exceptional skills as a bowler were acknowledged in the 2022/23 Fifty 50 season, where she was named the "Bowler of the Tournament." Her ability to consistently take wickets and control the game made her a formidable force on the field.

International recognition came in the form of the "Man of the Match" award in the 2022 ICC Women's T20 World Cup Qualifier. Her stellar performance in the 3rd/4th playoff against the United Arab Emirates played a pivotal role in Zimbabwe's victory. Additionally, she was named the "Player of the Match" in a match against Thailand, further cementing her reputation as a match-winner on the global stage.

Kelis Ndhlovu's outstanding achievements and contributions to the sport have firmly established her as one of the leading cricketers in women's cricket. Her numerous awards and accolades highlight her exceptional skills, consistency, and impact on the game. Ndhlovu continues to inspire future generations with her remarkable talent and unwavering dedication to the sport.

She is now looking to continue her development with a season in the UK next summer.
